Jessie said that Mrs. Allred, was her aunt. The child did not know the name of the lady to receive her, but said she thought her name was Jennie, and that she lived in East St. Louis. The child was almost hearthroken, and when asked why ahe had been sent to East St. Louis, tearfully exclaimed: "My mother is dead, but I have a stepmother, and I don't know why she sent me up here to live with a strange lady."

By instructions from the matron, Bessie was placed in the rounda last night in plain view of all visitors to the station.

The authorities are mystified over the little girl's case, and unless she is claimed by this morning will turn her ever to the police for investigation.

She knows that the man will re-spect her confidences and keep them to woman, the knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. There is every reason why women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unshifted persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ills and pains that she cannot bear when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly, it would not be the part of whites to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a zoman. There is every reason why the should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of woman a speciality for a third of a century, like Dr. R V.
